INTERNSHIP POSITION AT RECS INTERNATIONAL

Open vacancy

Keywords: renewable energy markets – environmental policy – global policy for sustainable development

Many companies and households are purchasing renewable electricity for their use and operations, but how does that work in practice? RECS International is offering an internship that opens the door to this fast developing market.

RECS International is a non-profit organization supporting the development for reliable, robust and transparent renewable electricity markets, facilitated by standardized energy tracking systems. These systems are the backbone of consumer choice in the electricity market.

RECS International has a large impact in the development of renewable energy markets in Europe and internationally. The organization is looking for motivated students to support our work in various areas, including but not limited to: analysis of new legislative proposals, review of market developments, creation of documentation as well as various administrative tasks.

The internship offers a valuable opportunity to take part in the fast growing market for renewable electricity. The intern is expected to participate for a minimum of 4-months in the RECS International offices, located in ’s-Hertogenbosch, sometime during the 2018 calendar year. The intern should be able to, as required, travel internationally.

Student profile

Students applying for this position are required to:

- Have a basic understanding of electricity markets, environmental and/or sustainable development policy
- Confident English skills, both written and verbally
- A confident communicator who is willing to understand and learn complex systems with real-world implications
- Show own initiative and flexibility

Application procedure

Please contact the secretariat with an introductory email, stating your background, a summary of your interest, your availability for the next twelve months and contact details including your name, telephone number and e-mail. Attached to this e-mail please send your CV or resume in PDF format. Send the e-mail to secretariat@recs.org.

For more information see www.recs.org or reach out to the secretariat via the e-mail mentioned above.